Hussain N. Hanbazazah

Director, King Abdulaziz Center
for World Culture (Ithra)

The COVID19- pandemic has demonstrated humanity's ability to adapt, overcome and progress in the face of adversity. Across our work and our everyday lives, we've held on to a sense of optimism and been grounded in our sense of duty towards ourselves and towards our societies. Despite its challenges, the past year has afforded us the opportunity to bring art, knowledge and culture, and a window of hope, to our communities in dynamic new ways.

While the pandemic has impacted our way of life across the board, it has also brought about a significant shift in how we perceive art and culture — a shift likely to continue long after the pandemic. This shift, a key benefit from the experiences of last year, has demonstrated our ability to lead the way through effort, innovation and impact, connecting with our communities and audiences by supplying diverse content and signature programs, as Ithra continues to trailblaze across the Kingdom's transforming arts and culture industry, leaving our mark on the global scene as well as representing the best of Saudi creativity to the world in the process.

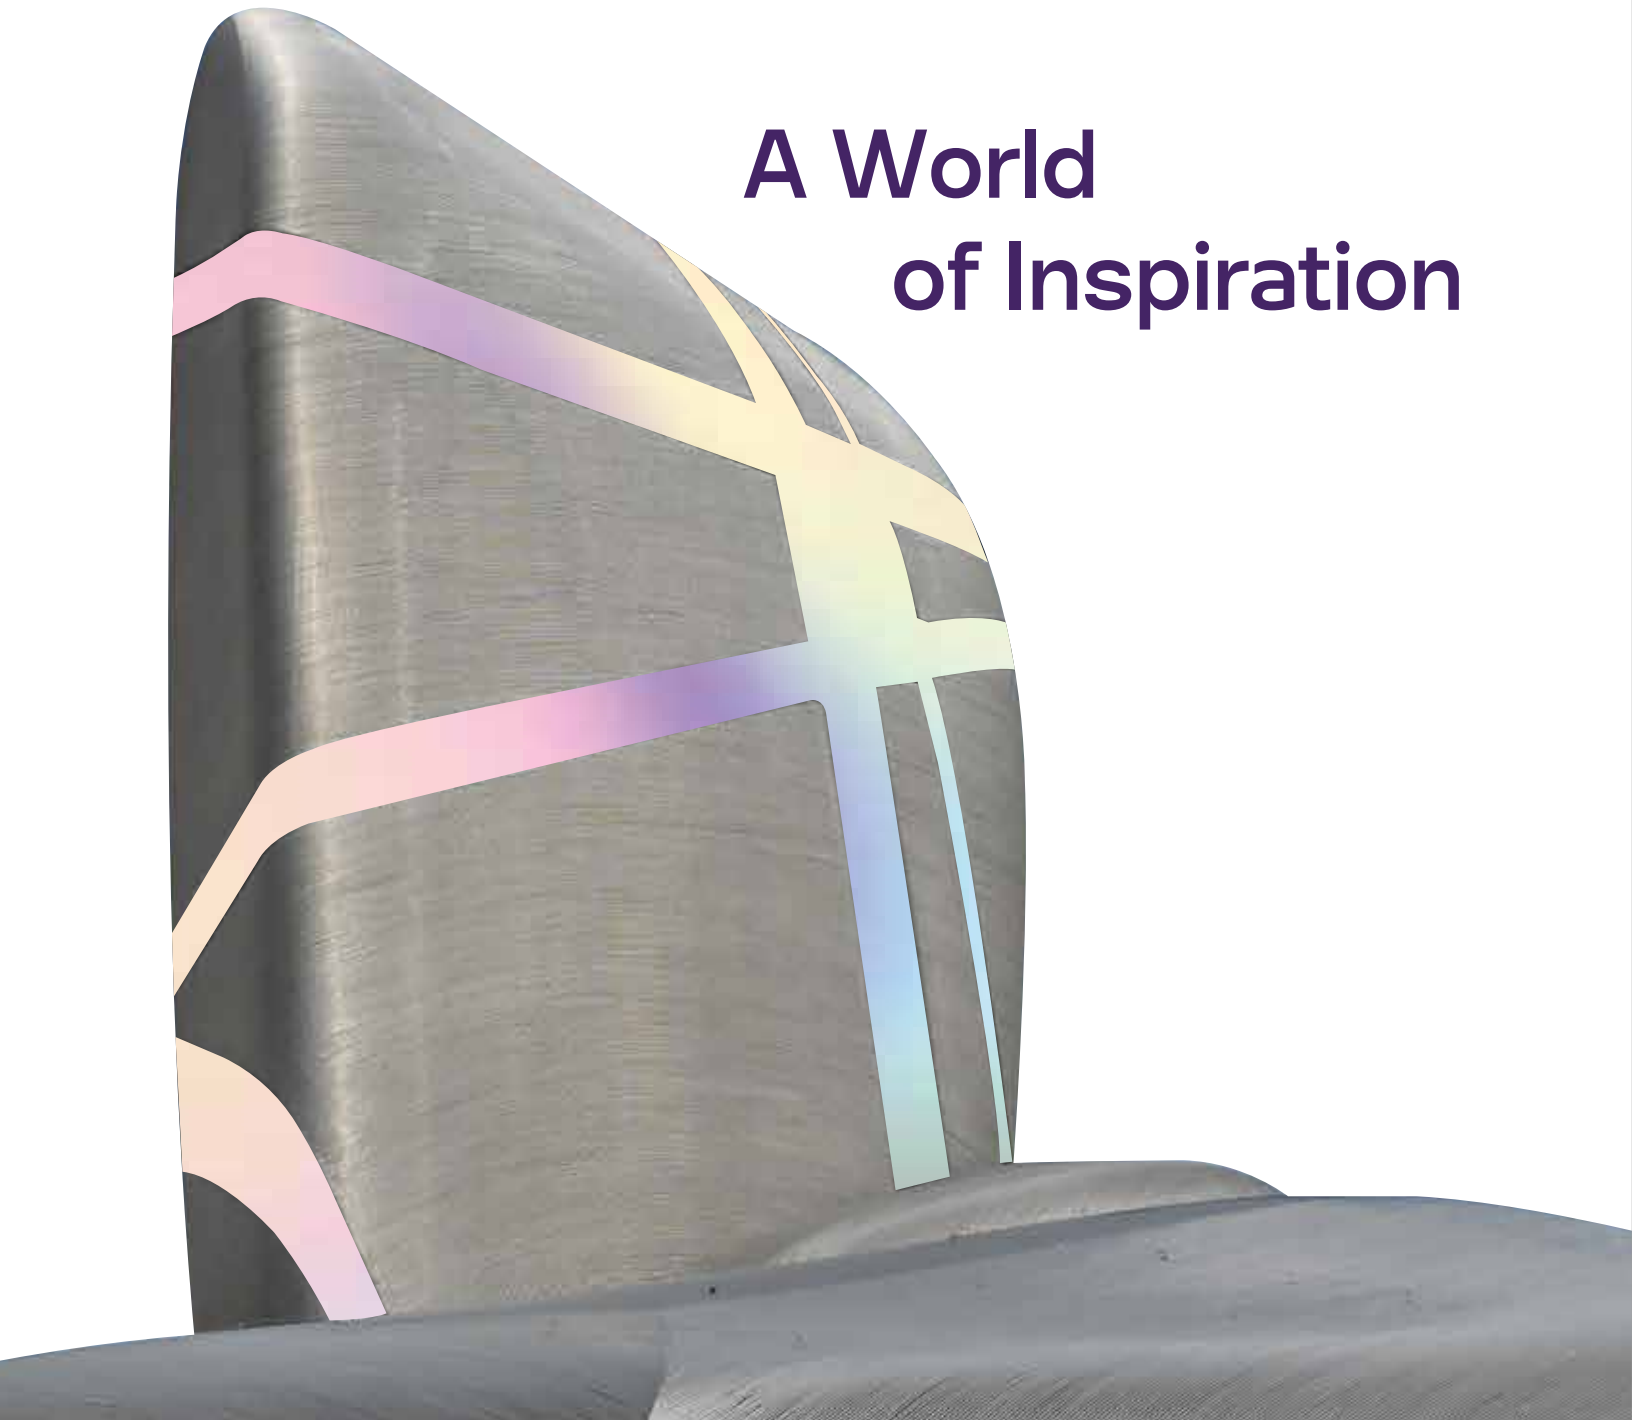

In solidarity with the Kingdom's leadership and public efforts to combat the spread of the coronavirus, we shut our doors and took the steps to continue our purpose, promise and mission to deliver enriching experiences and connect with our audiences and the homebound public while ensuring the safety of our audiences and our teams. Ithra Connect, our flagship online initiative, provided a platform to stay connected with our communities, giving them access to Ithra notwithstanding the distance. Taking our 2020 offerings fully online, it grew to feature more than 50 ongoing programs for children, families, students and creatives covering different interests and formats, encapsulating podcasts, talk shows, quizzes, video series, a collective online diary, virtual exhibitions and tours, seminars, society meetups and much more.

Through continued virtual communication and innovative use of our digital platforms, Ithra fulfilled its promise to inspire creativity within the Kingdom and elevate Saudi content to global heights. We continued to provide resources, experiences and an inspiration. We fueled the environment for curious learners, aspiring creatives and professionals to connect, create and innovate, as the new generation of gamechangers. Ithra is the beating heart of the Kingdom's cultural and creative ecosystem — it is where imagination is powered, ideas are born, knowledge shared and culture celebrated. We collaborate with local and international entities and partners to develop creative potential and encourage cultural conversations in the Kingdom.

As we embark on a new year with Ithra's doors open and welcoming the public once again, safely and socially distanced, we look forward to new beginnings and continuing our mission to enrich and inspire.

A World of Inspiration

Located in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, Ithra features a five - gallery museum, an exhibition hall, a performing arts theater, an innovation lab, a cinema, a state-of-the-art library and the first children's museum in the nation.

Ithra — from the Arabic word for "enrichment" — is a platform for art, creativity and culture. It is dedicated to education and innovation. It is Ithra's mission to cultivate the creative economy; and it does so by supporting the work of individuals in visual, cinematic, media and performing arts — as well as design and entrepreneurship.

The Ithra building is an architectural masterpiece resulting from an international competition won by the Norwegian firm Snohetta. It features a unique skin made of 360km of individually bent steel pipes designed to handle the stresses of its coastal desert site, most notably heat from the sun and wind-born sand. With the steel-pipe exterior set alongside the rammed earth walls of Ithra's interior plaza, the building combines the world's newest and oldest architectural technologies to create a model of sustainability that was awarded Gold LEED status — Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design, the leading green certification — for its built environment. In 2018, Ithra was listed by Time magazine as one of "the 100 greatest places in the world to visit."

Energy Exhibit

Itbra's ever-popular Energy Exhibit explores a world of discoveries in energy science through interactive displays, advanced technologies and multimedia. # Ithra and the Pandemic

Flexible and forward-looking, Ithra was ready when the pandemic hit. Although Ithra is housed in an architectural masterpiece and features comprehensive cultural facilities, Ithra is much more than a building. Our teams produce cultural content – exhibitions, films, classes, workshops, performances, articles and art. With our doors shuttered and our audiences under lockdown, we led the way with Ithra Connect, a UNESCO-recognized online initiative featuring more than 50 ongoing programs: video series, podcasts, workshops, classes, online exhibitions, a collective COVID19- diary, virtual tours, videos about objects in the collections, camps for kids, DIY videos, international panel discussions, online art group meetups, quiz shows and puzzles. While the Center was closed, Ithra Connect videos alone were viewed more than 20 million times.

The impact of Ithra Connect has been recognized at the regional level at the Middle East Public Relations Association Awards, the region's leading body for public relations and communication professionals. Ithra won the silver award for the Ithra Connect campaign in the Best Arts and Culture category. The campaign win was for Ithra's creative communications in expanding its reach during the global pandemic, using art, innovation and design to engage with domestic, regional and international communities.

Our acquisitions are carefully chosen to ensure that they will inform, engage and educate audiences of all ages.

Berber Minbar

Originally occupying a small Friday mosque in the Atlas Mountains, this 18th century cedar wood minbar was modeled on earlier Berber examples such as the grand Almoravid minbar in the Kutubiyya Mosque in Marrakech (built in 1137). As such, it harkens back to their golden age when Berber tribes ruled large parts of Morocco and Spain.

This Place is Mine

A Handbook for Hajj Pilgrims

This topographical depiction of the Masjid al Haram (Makkah) is found in a manuscript of the Futih al-Haramayn (Revelations of the Two Holy Sites) by Muhyi al-Lari (d. 1526). This edition dates from 1703 and was copied by Muhammad Zarif of Rajasthan, India. It was used as a guide for pilgrims, illustrating and describing the stations of the Hajj and the rituals.

Kiswa Textile

This 19th century silk textile is embroidered with gold and decorated with zigzag patterns and calligraphic inscriptions including the declaration of faith: "There is no god but Allah" and the names "Allah" and "Mohammed" (ﷺ). It was made in Turkey and either hung on the interior walls of the Ka'ba in Makkah or the Prophet's tomb in Medina.

Astrolabe

This exquisite cast silver astrolabe is over 700 years old and is signed by Muhammad Ibn Fattuh Al Khumairi, the most renowned astronomer of Islamic Spain. His astrolabes were copied by later astronomers both in the Islamic world and in Europe. Each of the accompanying plates is inscribed with major Spanish cities including Seville, Cordoba and Toledo.

GH0809: a Juxtaposition

This artwork, GH0809, by the Palestinian artist Taysir Batnaji, examines the effect of violence against the people of Gaza. The houses are displayed as if they were in a Western real estate agency, but they have all been destroyed. Batnaji himself comes from Gaza, and reflects on the sufferings of the people of his homeland.

Oushak Prayer Rug

This carpet fragment originally formed part of the central upper tier of a communal multiple niche prayer rug in the Selimiye mosque in Edirne, Turkey. The design of the rug, including its flowers, niche and lamp, would have reflected the splendor of that mosque's interior. It was made in Oushak, Turkey, one of the prime centers for prayer rug design and manufacture, in 1560.

2. Creativity

Tanween 2020: The New Next

Ithra's flagship creativity and innovation festival Tanween successfully concluded its third season in October. The festival was held in a hybrid format delivered with content provided both physically to audiences in the Ithra Theater and online.

The conference featured more than 35 speakers, as well as five three-hour virtual masterclasses with world-class professionals in creative design, data visualization, fashion, and food design. For the first time we offered one-to-one consulting sessions, engaging students and young professionals with experts in their fields.

The theme of Tanween was The New Next – Creativity is the Way Forward. Speakers included chef and entrepreneur Alan Yau, who established Wagamama; Joanna Peña-Bickley from Amazon; Duncan Wardle, formerly of Disney; and Sir Martin Sorrell, regarded by many as the father of modern marketing. In all, the season featured 30 speakers, 16 of them Saudi and a 50-50 balance of men and women.

Alsharqiya Gets Creative

3. Community

Dialogue in the Dark

At Ithra we believe in inclusion and in heightening empathy among our audiences. Our Great Hall exhibit Dialogue in the Dark gave visitors the experience of being visually impaired as they sought to navigate a market and a busy street while being led by a visually impaired guide. The initiative opened on February 23 and closed on March 14 due to COVID19-. The experience introduced visitors to a world without sight by taking them on a journey in which they had to rely on sounds and textures rather than sight as they navigated experiences in complete darkness. Ithra trained 15 Saudis who are blind or visually impaired to work as guides and show the visitors around the exhibition.

Working for the Community

Ithra used its 3D production capabilities to produce 2,000 transparent plastic face masks to be used by medical staff and front-line workers. The masks were a contribution to the fight against the COVID19- virus. Volunteers also distributed food aid to people in need.

COVID19- Journal

We saw the need to give our audiences platforms for creativity, especially given the context of the pandemic. We launched the COVID19- Journal, an online public forum allowing people to share their feelings and personal perspectives. This was a place to share hope as well as frustration. Sometimes it gave the chance to vent, but some found it an opportunity to inspire others. Over 1,000 contributions were received.

Back to School Programs

We did not allow COVID19- to stop our engagement with our younger audiences. We continued to run our Back to School programs in hybrid form to help children, parents and educators adjust to the new "blended" school environment after the long summer holidays.

Summer and Winter Camps

Despite the pandemic, we continued to run our short learning camps. This year, the summer camp was held online, while the winter camp ran physically. The camps include focused activities to engage and interest children.

The Market

As part of our Saudi National Day outreach efforts, we brought our creative vision to the streets of Al-Khobar with a place-making program titled The Market, the opening of which was attended by 12,000 people. The local farmer's market in Al-Ulaya, which had been in need of development, was revamped with upgraded farm-fare kiosks, colorful painting, art installations and added areas for exhibitions, music, performance and public seating, remaking it into an appealing place for the people of Al-Khobar and an attractive new opportunity for local farmers.

Y20 Summit

Ithra hosted the Y20 summit in October. The conference, which was held virtually because of the pandemic, brought together young people from across the world to discuss global issues and priorities. The Y20 is the youth-focused element of the G20 summit of world leaders, which was in November in Riyadh.

Volunteerism

At Ithra, we offer a pioneering platform for volunteering by offering our volunteers opportunities to exchange information and develop skills, such as the people management and collaboration skills they need to succeed in the modern world. Since the inception of Ithra, the Center has hosted 3,882 volunteers, and there have been 285,001 hours of volunteering.

4. Knowledge

Ithra Academy

Ithra has been hosting a great many workshops, seminars, classes and talks, but this ranging array of offerings will be coalesced in 2021 under the banner of the Ithra Academy. With the increasingly professionalized organization of the Academy, Ithra will be better positioned to partner with leading institutions from the region and around the world – including internationally-recognized certificate programs. Based in Ithra's iconic Ithra Tower, the Academy will continue to focus on creativity, art, prototyping and innovation. Offerings will include hands-on opportunities and skills development in fields as diverse as jewelry-making, fashion design, animation and improv comedy.

Ithra Talks

As part of the Ithra Connect series we organized exclusive live online talks with international and regional figures. They were the acclaimed English actor Idris Elba, the American astrophysicist Neil deGrasse Tyson, the international architect Kjetil Traedal Thorsen and Ithra's Head of Advisory, Fatmah Al-Rashid.

Elba discussed his acting methodology and how to arrange the logistical elements of the profession, such as looking for roles. Tyson examined subjects as diverse as stimulating curiosity in the classroom and why one should not try to create a mini black hole in a home science lab. Al-Rashid and Thorsen looked at creativity and design, especially in the context of the modern Middle East.

Knowledge Incubator

Ithra is much more than just a building — our Knowledge Incubator takes new methods of teaching science, math, technology and engineering all over the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. We engage both teachers and students with a range of activities to promote technological literacy and bring teaching colleagues up to date with the latest ways to teach the vital core subjects.

Library

During the COVID19- pandemic, Ithra made library membership free for digital borrowers, thus allowing communities access to e-books and audio books in English and Arabic.

5. Culture

Ithraeyat Magazine

Its essence lies in its name, which is based on the plural form of the word "ithra" meaning enrichment. Ithraeyat Magazine is a storehouse of unique, enriching cultural stories from the Kingdom and beyond. It is published in both English and Arabic, but it is unique in featuring specially written Arabic content tailored for the audience, rather than being translated from any other language. Its cover features exclusive debut art creations by groundbreaking Saudi artists, both established and emerging. Digital in format with special printed issues, the magazine partners with the Aga Khan Museum, the Saudi Ministry of Culture, the Art of Heritage Center in Riyadh, Barjeel Art Foundation, Hafez Gallery and Athr Gallery.

This was the sixth year of Ithra's National Reading Program, iRead. The closing ceremony for the competition managed by the Ithra Library honored the four Reader of the Year title winners. Since its inauguration, more than 71,000 Saudi youth have participated in the program, which has also hosted more than 100 writers and intellectuals from various countries. The judges bestow seven awards, and in 2020 the audience voted on another electronically. iRead was launched as an Ithra initiative to promote a culture of reading among Saudi youth.

Ithra Cultural Days: Vietnam

As a part of Ithra's engagement with different cultures and to fulfill Ithra's mission of promoting world culture and cross-cultural engagement, we launched our new 2020 seasonal program Cultural Days on February 2020 .3. The inaugural festival showcased Vietnam and ran until February 15, highlighting Vietnamese culture through music, performances, food, crafts and other elements.

A particularly popular program was the Vietnamese circus, AO Show, which played to sell-out crowds. The first Cultural Days program was developed in close coordination with the Vietnamese embassy in Riyadh, bringing more than 50 Vietnamese nationals as chefs, performers and crew to Ithra and attracting more than 45,000 visitors.

Eid Parade

In May, at the height of the lockdown, Ithra organized a new hybrid Eid celebration. This Eid parade featured a livestreamed cavalcade of decorated wagons that went through six cities in the Eastern Province. Through the parade we reached 100,000 people who were locked down when they would normally be visiting friends and family. This was a rare item of live entertainment during one of the toughest times of the COVID19- lockdown.

The background of the image is a solid dark blue color, overlaid with numerous thin, light blue wavy lines that create a sense of movement and depth. These lines are curved and flow across the frame, some intersecting to form a complex, organic pattern.

Sense & Sustainability

The year that we opened, we were honored and humbled by the fact that Time magazine named Ithra on its 2018 list of “the 100 greatest places to visit in the world.”

Ithra is architecturally unique. A global landmark, the building’s steel pipe skin differentiates it from any other building. It combines this newest building technology with one of the oldest – rammed earth, a combination of uncemented dirt, gravel and clay that is watered and then compressed into a structural form. Rammed earth has excellent insulation, humidity-control and acoustic qualities. Ithra’s rammed earth elements proudly feature earth from around the Kingdom, and the use of local materials is a critical sustainability element for LEED certification.

- Ithra’s built environment is Gold LEED certified: Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) is the globally recognized US Green Building Council sustainability certification that uses rating systems for every phase of making and using a building – the design, construction, operation and maintenance.
- Xeriscaping is an extremely efficient landscaping technique. It is a key feature of Ithra’s sustainable design. Ithra’s campus features local flora in arid beds next to imported species from Australia and Arizona chosen for their ability to thrive in the desert.
- Ithra earned the American Concrete Institute’s highest award – Excellence – in concrete construction in 2019.
- Ithra is conceptualized as a collection of five stones symbolizing unity. The ground level stands for the present, below is the past, and the upper elements represent the future.
- Ithra is wrapped in 93,403 steel tubes totaling more than 360km in combined length. The tubes are just over 75mm in diameter and made of 2mm-thick Duplex 2205, one of the hardest types of stainless steel.
- The mashrabiya is a centuries-old cooling system from the region. It is easily recognized throughout the Middle East as the cantilevered wooden screen window system that juts out from traditional buildings, allowing for cool air to enter and warm air to escape. This is how Ithra’s steel pipe skin works, it creates a natural air flow that removes solar heat gain. The mashrabiya is celebrated in Ithra’s design by the geometrical support screens that surround the covered walkway around the building and the perforated steel gates in the Plaza.
